

Nikita Evseev

Okinawa Institute of Science and Technology, Japan

Sobolev functions valued in Banach or metric space

We discuss the approach based on embedding a metric space into a Banach space. One outcome of studying this subject was that it highlights some differentiability properties in normed spaces that are far beyond the scalar case. In particular, we can observe a gap between classical and metric notions of Sobolev mappings.